“Is Radiation Dosimetry Research Clinically Relevant or Just Medical Physics Amusement”

L. John Schreiner, PhD, FCCPM, FCOMP, FAAPM
Chief Medical Physicist
(Cancer Centre of Southeastern Ontario at the Kingston Health Sciences Centre)
Adjunct Full Professor, Departments of Oncology, Physics, Engineering Physics & Astronomy

Objectives:
- the importance of radiation dosimetry in clinical radiation therapy,
- the importance of basic science in radiation dosimetry,
- the challenges in clinical implementation of novel dosimetries, and
- some personal views on what dosimetry QA the clinic needs.
