"Perspectives of Neuro-Oncology Clinicians on Medical Assistance in Dying"

Seth Climans, MD.
Neuro-Oncology Fellow, Princess Margaret Cancer Centre, University of Toronto.

Objectives:

- Appreciate the current legal landscape for medical assistance in dying (MAiD) in Canada and elsewhere
- Recognize clinical factors that might signal impaired mental capacity around end-of-life decisions in brain cancer patients
- Understand the reasons why neuro-oncology clinicians might or might not support a given patient's decision to have MAiD
