“Burnout in Canadian Pathology”

Learning Objectives:

1. Describe the phenomenon of physician burnout including its characteristics and prevalence among physicians in general, Canadian pathologists, and members of the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine at Western
2. Identify the potential implications of physician burnout on physicians themselves and the quality of patient care that they provide
3. Apply a framework to justify creating meaningful physician wellness infrastructure.
4. Apply a framework to identify various drivers of Canadian pathologist burnout and potential corresponding mitigation strategies.
5. Try various departmental and individual strategies that are currently working to mitigate against burnout of Canadian pathologists.
