

English Language Proficiency

Applicants whose first language is not English must furnish evidence of their proficiency in the use of the English language by a satisfactory achievement within the last two years. Language of instruction is not a considering factor.

In order to be automatically exempt from the English proficiency requirement, your first learned language must be English, or you must have been educated in an academic degree program for at least two years in a country whose principal language is English. Applicants from the countries below are given an automatic ELP exemption.

Australia	Liberia	South Africa
Barbados	Malawi	Swaziland
Botswana	Malta	Tanzania
Ghana	Namibia	Trinidad and Tobago
Guyana	New Zealand	Uganda
Ireland	Nigeria	United Kingdom
Jamaica	Papua New Guinea	United States of America
Kenya	Sierra Leone	Zambia
Lesotho	Singapore	Zimbabwe

Official language status is not relevant; English must be the primary language used in the country. Please note that the decision to grant an exemption is at the discretion of the department and contingent on the approval of the Associate Dean, Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies.

The Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine does not offer conditional admission based on completion of an English language proficiency program.

Students who are required to present evidence of proficiency in English must make their own arrangements to write the TOEFL, IELTS or CAEL and to have the official results sent directly to the School of Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies by the testing agency. Those graduates from Fanshawe College's ESL Program must provide official proof of graduation.
